Parisian 20th century bog wood coffee table.

This one-of-a-kind coffee table is a fantastic example of organic art.

Bog oak became popular for structural elements of a house as well as furniture design from the 17th Century.

After hundreds or thousands of years lying in a swamp, this wood exhibits wonderful figured grain and knots in the timber.

This coffee table has a polished finish which compliments the natural rich patina of bog wood.

This would make a unique statement in an interior and is perfect for bringing a little nature into your home.
