A stunning 19th Century marquetry and penwork tilt top games table.

Very good quality and in lovely condition on brass casters.

The penwork depicts a range of games, including dominoes, cards and dice.

Penwork was popular in England and Scotland up until around the mid 19th Century. Motifs were commonly inspired by pattern books or prior works.

Sometimes it was carried out by professional artists, but it was generally seen as a pastime for ladies of leisure, like drawing and embroidery.

This table has a significant, turned central support and tripod base.
