W: 71 cm (27 15/16")
H: 135 cm (53 1/8")
D: 71 cm (27 15/16")

19th Century oversized Anglo-Indian armchair of stylish form.

Anglo-Indian furniture refers to pieces made in India between 1858 and 1947 for aristocratic Indians and English colonial administrators in India.

This piece features extensive carving throughout and the open carved back is surmounted with an eagle and trailing foliage. Side panels feature interlaced foliate carving and aprons below with further scroll carving.

The arms with scroll foliate and bulbous carving, raised on tapering scroll legs and castors.

Option to recover the upholstered elements. A highly attractive chair which will add something unusual to an interior.
