19th Century pine factory work table, circa 1880.

This is a very solid piece, that has been in the same location for the last 140 years. With simple construction, largely relying on mortise-and-tenon and dovetail joints.

The boarded top has had some replacements, but these are visibly very old. The natural wear to the surface really adds to the texture and charm of this piece.

Full of character and with wonderful rich patina, this is a striking table that would make a fantastic feature in any interior.
