Three plywood and walnut veneer Modernist tables, in the manner of Alavar Aalto.

These charming side tables have wonderful veneered concentric designs to their circular tops, with striking colour and graining.

Alavar Aalto (1898-1976) was a Finnish architect and designer.

Aalto's 'no.60 stool' design garnered much attention for the way he manipulated solid wood to give the legs a protruding bent form.

Each of these tables rests on three legs with that same shaped form.

With their low proportions and simple yet decorative appearance, these side tables will be a great addition to any interior.

Priced individually.
