Early 19th Century Swedish corner cabinet.

This beautiful cabinet is in its entirely original condition and has lovely proportions.

The top section features a decoratively carved pediment above two panelled doors which enclose shelving.

A spacious cubby hole with pretty carved details sits between the top and bottom sections.

At the bottom, two further panelled doors enclose more storage. The whole rests on a plinth base with a decoratively carved apron.

This cupboard exhibits distressed remains of old dark blue paint which gives it a wonderful authenticity.

This is a great cabinet for the kitchen or a living area. Its traditional corner form means it won't impose on any room but offers ample storage.

This piece comes from a private home in Angermanland in the north of Sweden.
