Wonderful French leather sofa or daybed, circa 1900.

This daybed features gently outscrolled end supports / armrests, one of which drops down.

It retains its original oxblood leather upholstery which has a rich aged patina. The armrests feature attractive close studded details, whilst the apron is adorned with larger spaced studs.

This daybed also retains its original velvet seat cushion which has one small patch.

The whole rests on short square tapering legs.

This piece is in an overall good condition, with a few expected repairs given its age and use.

This is a lovely authentic daybed that will bring a dose of character to any space.
