English 19th Century Regency rosewood and palm card table.

This smart table features a flip top which rotates to allow for a large games surface lined with green baize. This nicely faded rosewood top, as well as the sides, is delicately inlaid with brass stringing.

The top is supported on four turned palm wood columns. The columns terminate in reeded sabre legs with original casters. The base is joined with a turned cross stretcher.

It is unusual for a table of this sort to have a plain wood base. A very elegant and beautifully designed piece.
