Framed French print of palette knives.

This print comes from an 1890s catalogue of artists' materials from an old Parisian art supplier. The catalogue dates to a period when Paris was an epicentre for young artists from around the world.

Artists came from far and wide to study and drink in the renowned atmosphere of the 'Rive Gauche.' Indeed, the 'rue de Seine' is printed on one of the smaller prints as a supplier of art tools. This is now a chic street leading to Le Pont des Arts, lined with galleries and smart shops.

A lovely piece of art history and decorative in its own right.

Presented in a narrow pale grey frame.
