Stunning French 19th Century long cast iron table, circa 1890.

The wooden top rests over a wonderfully decorative cast iron base with four scrolling cross-form supports and additional uprights.

The base features remains of old grey paint, whilst the wooden top has been painted matte black.

The top is a more recent addition, with the base likely having a marble or slate top originally.

This traditional French bistro table has lovely proportions and timeless decorative appeal. It is in a sound and stable condition.

Wonderful as a console indoors or as a garden dining table.
