Bog Myrtle Incense Cones

£13.33

W: 9.5 cm (3 3/4")
H: 2.5 cm (1")
D: 6 cm (2 3/8")

Bog Myrtle thrives in the harsh conditions of the northern hemisphere with a long history of being found on the hard to reach paths of mountainous regions and at the top of cliffs along the coastline.

It has been used as an insect repellent for these reasons: its location means that walkers and explorers come across the plants when they are being attacked by midges and other insects finding that Myrica gale is proficient in keeping them at bay.

The aroma is sometimes comparable to that of cloves and is often used in flower bouquets for its fragrant qualities which complement other floral scents.

Light the end of the cone and burn for around 15 seconds blowing the ember until red hot, place in the heart of your home in either a hallway or a landing to allow the fragrant smoke to disperse.

Use the coin or a heatproof surface to burn each cone on.

Burns well with our Incense Burner.
