18th English Century oak cupboard.

This lovely oak cupboard, also known as a court cupboard, has a lovely moulded cornice top above an overhanging frieze. It stands on turned pendant buns with small finials hanging at the corners to the upper section, fitted with two panelled cupboard doors. \

The lower part of the cupboard has three drawers, the central one with a brass escutcheon and the others, along with the doors, have wooden knobs.

Two larger cupboard doors are below and open to reveal ample storage space.
