Part of our Contemporary Created Collection The Details We build our Portobello Sofa up from a hardwood beech frame, using only traditional methods and materials. With a hand-tied coil-sprung seat and back, there is no foam used in the build up. The back is sprung with horse hair, and then deep-buttoned for a neat finish. What makes this sofa so comfortable is the high down content in the seat cushion (50% down, 50% feather). The down gives the cushions lovely softness, while the feathers provide loft and spring. The castors are individually hand-cast by traditional English metal crafters to a very high standard and a variety of finishes can be achieved. We use the antique brass finish as standard. The Portobello Sofa, like all our models, can be made completely bespoke. We want this to be your perfect sofa, so if you want it a bit bigger or smaller, softer or firmer, or anything else just ask and we will do our best to accommodate. The price excludes fabric. If you need some help finding the perfect fabric, let us know. It takes approximately 10 metres in a plain fabric to cover a standard Portobello Sofa. For patterns, and bespoke sizes, get in touch and we can advise on fabric quantity.
