A Turret clock made by J.W. Benson, Ludgate Hill, London.

Bearing a plate stating "clock makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales" dated 1882.

Intricate mechanism exposed beneath clock face. Strikes on the hour with a self winding mechanism.

J.W. Benson became retailers of clocks, watches and jewellery in 1874.

As well as holding a number of royal warrants, supplying Queen Victoria, the Tsar of Russia and the Queen and Prince of Wales, J.W. Benson was official watchmaker to the Admiralty & War Department.

A fascinating piece of timekeeping and royal history.
