Together these create a run of 162 seed merchant's drawers but are now available for purchase together or individually. Formerly built into the premises of Finney and co, Newcastle upon Tyne, a prominent horticultural business in the 19th and 20th centuries. These drawers retain original paint and patina of age. Many drawers still have original labels indicating contents of varieties of flowers and vegetables. Several drawer linings carry amusing graffiti inscribed by previous employees which are fun to explore and add an element of social history. (12 drawers and several more handles are later replacements). Each section is 193cm long.
